Technical Assistance Partnership -
Expert Deployment Mechanism

Canada's TAP-EDM responds to needs identified by countries eligible for official development assistance, ranging from gender equality and climate action to governance and human rights.

TAP-EDM provides an opportunity for partnership and learning for Canadians and partners alike, in alignment with Canada's Feminist International Assistance Policy.

The project team aims to increase Canadians' role as global citizens and support for Canada's international assistance efforts through public engagement.

In partnership with Canada

Alinea is an international development consultancy whose name means "introducing new ideas," which is how our team of in-house technical experts strategizes, designs and delivers smart solutions to meet the world's changing challenges.

OBJECTIVE

TAP-EDM was created by Global Affairs Canada to respond to the needs of countries eligible for official development assistance with the deployment of Canadian technical advisors abroad providing short-term development assistance while strengthening Canada's bilateral relationships with partners around the world.

CAPACITY DEVELOPMENT

The project team firmly believes that for development to create lasting change, stakeholders and beneficiaries must be empowered to claim it as their own. TAP's project design and implementation encourage and foster participation, collaboration, and local ownership - developing the capacity of individuals, public servants and public institutions.

CROSS-CUTTING THEMES

Technical assistance work plans, and capacity enabling products designed specifically for each partner, include best practices in gender equality and social inclusion, environment and climate action, good governance practice and a human rights-based approach - all contributing to Canada's Feminist International Assistance Policy.

ADVISOR ONBOARDING

Each advisor receives training on duty of care and Alinea's development assistance values and approaches, including Alinea's Code of Conduct. The project team reviews all financial transactions ensuring full accountability.
